OFFICE OF LOGISTICS

Introductory Statement

The Director of Logistics plans and implements Agency logistic support on a global basis. He provides for the procurement, receipt, storage, distribution, accountability, and disposition of Agency material, and also the transportation of personnel, material and supplies, and the furnishing of printing services for the intelligence community.

The Director of Logistics is also responsible for domestic mail, courier, motor pool, and telephone services, space acquisition, maintenance and allied Agency support. He is directly responsible for the planning for the new Agency Headquarters building.

The scope and direction of the Logistic effort is determined by requirements to support both domestic and operational plans, programs and projects world-wide. The Office of Logistics has the capability to support global Agency activities which are expected to continue at approximately the levels established during the current fiscal year.

The Office of Logistics, in line with Agency objectives, missions and policies, continues to refine and adjust its policies and procedures through the issuance of appropriate regulatory material after coordination with interested Agency components. Property accountability has been put into effect on a world-wide basis.

The operations conducted at [] continue to increase both in activity as well as in the various types of support furnished, with particular emphasis on the surveillance and rehabilitation of strategic material required for world-wide support. Plans have been completed for the establishment and funding of the program to provide the military services with those items peculiar to this Agency and required for Unconventional Warfare.

The program for providing overseas stations with a direct procurement channel [] has been completed and is in operation.

New Headquarters Building

General:

Develops and implements planning and policies in connection with the construction and occupancy of the new Agency headquarters building; supplies staff coordination with the Public Buildings Service, the architect-engineer and contractors on matters concerning the new Agency Headquarters building. Due to the numerous changes involved in the relocation of the Agency headquarters a direct comparison of costs is impractical and the estimates reflected under this activity are not always attributable solely to the fact that we are moving to a new building. Attention is called to specific items in the explanation of changes.

Accomplishments Fiscal Year 1960:

Completed the work called for under the Excavation and Foundation contract for the new Agency headquarters building.

Issued a Use Permit for the Virginia Electric and Power Company for the construction of a substation on the new Agency building site, and through General Services Administration negotiated a contract for electric service.

Completed the review of space layouts for floors two through seven and submitted revised space layouts to the Architect-Engineer for the preparation of new partition layouts and related changes.

Continued to work with National Security Agency in engineering and planning the restricted area telephone system for the Deputy Director - Intelligence.

Determined telephone requirements for the move to the new headquarters building.
